

School of Environmental &
Natural Resource Sciences
Frost Campus | Fleming College

SIR SANDFORD FLEMING COLLEGE 9TH ANNUAL ECOHEALTH CONFERENCE

Call for Posters

This year the Ecosystem Management and the Urban Forestry programs have partnered to host an ecosystem health conference. The conference 'Healthy Planet, Healthy Minds' will take place on Saturday, March 25th, at Fleming's Frost Campus in Lindsay, Ontario.

2017 Conference Theme

Our vision is to bring together community members, students, and colleagues to hear about knowledge, research, and ideas that explore the connection between human health and the environment, highlighting the restorative powers of nature to improve mental health and human well-being.

Poster Symposium

The poster symposium is an excellent opportunity to share research findings with a broad audience. We invite students, professionals and others to share their research, initiatives and work relevant to improving mental health and the well-being of people and the planet. Your poster will be prominently displayed at the conference venue and will be viewed by practitioners in the environmental and public health sectors, as well as students and community members of Kawartha Lakes and other communities.

If you wish to participate in the symposium, please submit an abstract of your work (max. 200 words) which includes:

- the title of your presentation,
- A rationale of your work,
- Key objectives and methods,
- Results and implications of your research.

Please direct abstract, questions or any accommodations to Meidan Leiderman at meidan.leiderman@flemingcollege.ca by March 1, 2017. Please include your name(s), your organization and a contactable address. For more information about the conference and other opportunities to become involved, please visit our website at: <https://ecohealthconference.wixsite.com/ecohealthconference>.