

The Society for Ecological Restoration - Central Rockies chapter is hosting a pub talk:

Mining impacts and restoration of the Upper Arkansas River valley

presented by Laura Archuleta, US Fish & Wildlife Service

Please join us for this free event on 23 June 2016 from 6 – 9 PM at

The Lazy Dog Sports Bar & Grill
1346 Pearl St, Boulder, CO 80302

Hors d'oeuvres will be provided, cash bar available.

All with an interest in ecological restoration are welcome!

Learn about the mining legacy in the Upper Arkansas River valley near Leadville and the steps taken to restore natural resources values and the efforts that were critical to transforming the Upper Arkansas River from a severely impacted aquatic system to the Gold Medal fishery we enjoy today. Laura Archuleta is an Environmental Contaminants Specialist with the US Fish & Wildlife Service, Colorado Ecological Services Field Office. She has over 19 years of experience working throughout the state, with numerous partners, on abandoned mine land reclamation, water quality issues, natural resource damage assessment, habitat and watershed restoration, hazardous materials spill response, and pesticide contamination projects.

For more information about this and other upcoming events, or how to support great activities such as this pub talk by joining CeRSER, please visit our website: <http://chapter.ser.org/centralrockies/>

Food, Beer & Ecological Restoration!

